MAYOR'S REPORT

RE: MAYOR'S REMARKS

Mayor Ashe made the following statement:

"We now come to Mayor's Report and I want to make a statement here this evening, because obviously a large number of people in our audience here at Whittle Springs Middle School have come to this meeting to address matters concerning the tragic death of Juan Daniels. I certainly believe it's the desire of Members of City Council to listen to the people who are here this evening on this issue at this point in the agenda; but, first, let me make a couple of remarks about it as Mayor.

Certainly it is an extraordinarily tragic situation. It's obviously tragic for the family and the community at the loss of a life. It's tragic for the police officers, as they do not like to take the life in any situation. We're asking more and more from our police officers in today's society. They have to make life and death decisions often in a heated moment. And, quite frankly, it's not an easy job. But, police officers are human and they can make errors in judgment.

That is why the actions of the police officers involved in this shooting are currently the subject of two investigations. Captain Charles Coleman is conducting one investigation to see if there were any criminal violations that occurred. The second investigation is being led by Sgt. Gordon Catlett of the Internal Affairs Unit to look into any violation of city policies or procedures. The results of the criminal investigation will be reviewed by the Knox County District Attorney General's Office. It's my desire to have a complete examination of the incident and if the conclusions require disciplinary action or the filing of criminal warrants, then I certainly expect appropriate actions will be taken.

These are the procedures that are in place now and they will run their course. But, unquestionably, the shootings by the police department over the past several months have created tension between residents and the police department in several neighborhoods. And, as Mayor, this is a situation that I and the community at large cannot tolerate. If we're to be successful in battling crime, then our police officers and our citizens must be partners, not adversaries. We need to work on strengthening the partnership between the police and citizens and all our neighborhoods. And, we want to listen to your concerns tonight. We also want to take steps to insure a continuing dialogue between citizens and this administration to explore ways to improve relationships between the police department and the community.

That's why I've cleared my calendar for tomorrow morning, starting at 10:00, and I would like for those people who are here this evening on this particular subject to form a representative group of your choosing to meet with me and my staff at 10:00 tomorrow morning in my office at the City-County Building. I want to talk about this shooting, but I also want to look beyond this one incident to the broader picture, much broader picture, of how the department interacts with the citizens of our community and what are the best ways to improve those relationships. And, I also want to assure you that our meeting tomorrow is just the first step in that process.

Unless there's objection--I don't thing there is any--I've been given the names of four people who wish to speak this evening to this particular issue. If there are others, certainly let me know. But, without objection from any Member of City Council, we'll proceed to hear from the names that I've been given, and if there are others, certainly feel free to add. But, the first person is Dewey Roberts."

Dewey Roberts, President of the NAACP, stated that he was here tonight representing a community that is more outraged than he had ever seen it. It further stated that this outrage comes from not only this recent incident, but incidents over the past few years. Mr. Roberts stated that the police killings are becoming too common place in their community. He explained that the KPD lacks understanding to deal with the African-American Community in Knoxville and that these senseless acts of violence and excessive force are unacceptable to the Sixth District. Mr. Robert said there is a double standard as to how the police department negotiations with African-Americans in stand-off situations and how they negotiate with members of the white community. He further stated that the community had meet the previous evening and had come up with the following concerns which have to be addressed: (1) why are procedures different when handling African-American citizens in stand-off situations; (2) why are there no African-American negotiators with the Knoxville Police Department and the need for more African-American officers; and (3) a Civilian Review Board should be formed immediately. Mr. Roberts stated that Council must listen to them, because they will not take it anymore.

The following persons addressed the issue: Clarence McDowell; Gwen Winfrey; an unidentified person; County Commissioner Diane Jordan; Reverend Michael Broadnax; Dr. Luther Kindell; Kevin Taylor; Mrs. Daniels (Juan Daniels' mother); Sue Cox; Alonzo Montgomery; Doyle Baugus; Pauline Woods; Gail, a citizen; Vivian Holloway; Brian L. Buckman; Malcolm; Lois Perry; Leroy Tate; Mrs. Norman; "Child of God"; Bishop Bobbie Moore; Kathleen Carter; Oscar "Poor Boy" Brown; Jeffery Starnes; Shannon Romane; Frances Clouse; Dewey Roberts; Councilman Powell; Councilwoman Malone; and Councilman Pavlis.
